Alberta Wheat Pool Functioning Well

The Alberta Wheat Pool has issued the following statement with reference to rumors concerning the organization which have been circulating in many newspapers for the past few weeks:

"Statements emanating from various sources to the effect that the Wheat Pool has an enormous carry-over from the 1923 crop, and is in a 'blue funk' because of the large volume of new crop to be delivered within the next few months are ridiculously inaccurate. Neither is the Wheat Pool thinking of running to cover under the protecting wing of any government."

The estimates of the Wheat Pool carry-over have been placed in certain newspapers as anything up to 70,000,000 bushels. As a matter of fact the Wheat Pool carry-over this year will not be any larger than that of last year and possibly less.

It is true that the Canadian wheat crop will be large this year, but such ridiculous estimates as 700,000,000 bushels which was recently wired from Winnipeg to Chicago are entirely unfounded and do a great deal of damage. As a matter of fact the crop may not exceed that of last year and outrageous estimates only tend to lower prices.

The pool handled last year's crop in spite of the damaged condition of a large percentage of it in a capable and efficient manner. There are no grounds for the belief that it will not handle the forthcoming crop in an even more efficient way. Pool members can rest assured.

An Important Experiment

Bringing ten thousand of the vast army of unemployed British miners to assist in harvesting Western Canada's 1928 grain crops is an experiment on a large scale that will be watched with great interest and sympathy not only in Canada and Britain, but throughout the Empire. That it is an experiment confronted by many difficulties and not free from dangers is fully recognized, but in view of Canada's present need for harvest hands, and Britain's desperate and apparently unsolvable problem of unemployment, it is one well worth while.

Unquestionably there has arisen a feeling in the Old Land that Canada, with its sparse population and great areas of vacant lands and enormous undeveloped natural resources, ought to come to the relief of Britain and the British people through the acceptance of large numbers of the unemployed, and that in doing so this Dominion would not only render a real service to these workers and the Empire but would ultimately be well repaid through the infusion of so much British blood into the cosmopolitan citizenship of this country.

In Canada itself there are men more or less prominent in the life of the country who are critical of the immigration now coming into the Dominion and who loudly demand that settlers from the British Isles be given a preference over all others, even to the extent of excluding those of other than British birth.

Opposed to these groups is a large body of Canadian opinion which holds that it would be a mistake not only for Canada but for Britain to bring into this Dominion large numbers of the British unemployed who lack the fitness and qualifications which would enable them to make successful citizens in this new land. As the Minister of Labor recently pointed out, it would be no kindness to bring unemployed men from Britain unless there is employment for them here, and that no good service would be rendered the Empire by lessening the number of unemployed in Britain and creating an acute unemployment situation in Canada.

It is recognized, too, that in Canada employment is subject to seasonal changes, and that even in the most favorable seasons there is a measure of unemployment inevitable during the winter months. Winter employment is at low ebb in the cities and larger towns during the winter, and unless winter employment on the farms can be secured for them, British immigrants must face hardship through no fault of their own, or the fault of anybody else. Between April and November, the situation is entirely different with farm work, railway construction, building operations and municipal improvements and works of all kinds under way. December to March is the critical period.

Under the arrangement whereby these ten thousand unemployed British miners are coming to work in the harvest fields, it is provided that the Canadian authorities will do everything in their power to secure winter farm employment for them, but that all those who cannot be so placed, or prefer to return to Britain, must be returned.

For the sake of the experiment, and for the sake of Canada and Britain secondly, it is to be hoped that by far the greater number will be placed in all-the-year round employment. Canada wants these Britishers, and they should be accorded a hearty welcome and every possible chance to make good. In any mass movement of population there is bound to be a number of misfits, chronic grouseurs and hopeless incompetents, but the experiment being made should not be judged by these exceptions, but by the measure of success attending the movement as a whole.

Harvest time in the West is a time of stress. It is a strenuous period, when everybody is obliged to work long hours. It is a time when the farmer, anxious to obtain the best results of a year's labor, is apt to be impatient and exacting, and to these miners unused to long hours and engaged in unfamiliar work, the farmer may appear to be a hard taskmaster. There must be a recognition of these differences and difficulties on both sides. The harvest hand should strive to realize in the full his own inexperience and shortcomings in his new environment, and exert himself to the utmost to give satisfaction and make good. The farmer employer, on the other hand, should exercise a maximum of patience and understanding, and should endeavor to place the best in them in the hope and expectation of encouraging them to do their best and inducing in them a real liking for Canada and a determination to remain and make a success of life in this country.

These British miners, if they have a mind seeking to do good, should co-operate to the fullest extent possible with the Dominion and Provincial Governments in finding winter employment for his best and make good, arrangements should, if possible, be made to retain him throughout the winter and until work becomes plentiful in the spring of the new year.

Justly handled, and with everybody striving to do his best, this experiment with British miners may well prove to be a turning point in the history of immigration to Canada. The British Government is now training an additional 21,000 men and their families for agricultural life in the Dominions. If the coming ten thousand harvesters make a success of their undertaking—and if the Canadian people unitedly help them to do so—this country will undoubtedly receive the bulk of these other 21,000 partially trained men and women. Canada wants them, and our people should do everything in reason to encourage them to come here.

The present movement presents a golden opportunity, therefore, to those who have had outspoken in their criticism of past immigration from Britain. It is now up to them to throw themselves with equal vigor into the task of finding permanent work for the thousands who are now or shortly will be in our midst.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Trouble That Usually Attacks Young Children

St. Vitus Dance is the name generally given to a disease described by medical men as chorea. This trouble usually attacks young children, though older people may be affected with it. The most common symptoms are a twitching of the face and limbs. As the speech organs are affected, the speech is often affected. The disease is due to debility of the nerves and relief may be obtained by rest and supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been most successful in reaching this trouble through their specific action on blood, with which the speech is often affected. The following instance proves the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in this trouble. Mrs. Thomas Brown, Bath, Ont., says:—"My little son, Pink, was born with St. Vitus' Dance. He was very nervous and his legs and arms would jerk and his speech was very affected and his condition was pitiable. I then tried to cure him with the best of my own knowledge, but I decided to give him Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He was used there was an improvement in his condition and by the time six weeks were taken all but the trouble had disappeared, and he was well and strong. I have given the pills to my growing girls and I feel sure of no other directions. I can say that the same applies to grown-ups as well."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Laying Heavy Steel Rails

C.P.R. Replacing Rails With Heavier Steel On Maple Creek and Brooks Subdivisions

Good progress is being made with the relaying of steel on the Canadian Pacific lines in the Calgary division during the past few months. One hundred and thirty-five miles of new rail has been laid on the Maple Creek subdivision, that is between Medicine Hat and Swift Current, while the relaying is now going on in the Brooks subdivision between Calgary and Medicine Hat.

The relaying consisted of the replacement of 80 and 80 pound steel by rails weighing 100 pounds per foot. The heavier rail is necessary in view of the increased speed of the trains and their greater weight.

As mentioned above, 135 miles of heavy rail have been laid on the Maple Creek subdivision. On the Brooks subdivision the mileage of heavy steel will be about 130. It is estimated that the cost of relaying the track is approximately $1,000,000 per hundred miles, thus the work on the Calgary division this year will cost the Canadian Pacific Railway a total of about $2,065,000.

Water Power Installation

Two Million Horsepower To Be Developed In New Brunswick

Two million horsepower will, it is estimated by the department of the interior, be added to the water power installation in the Dominion within the next few years. This new work will require a direct investment of at least $200,000,000.

The annual statement of the Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, with regard to the progress of water power development issued at the beginning of the year predicted an addition of 374,000 horsepower to the total installation in the Dominion during the first six or seven months of 1928. A mid-season review of conditions now indicates that during the whole year as much as 550,000 H.P. will be added, either in new development or in addition to existing plants.

Farm Credits

Steps To Be Taken To Put Into Operation Recent Legislation

With the return to Ottawa of Hon. J. A. Robb, minister of finance, definite steps will probably be taken to put into operation the legislation of 1927 authorizing farm credits.

The first step, it is stated, will likely be the appointment of a central board to be known as the Canadian Farm Loan Board. Under the statute, this board will be composed of four members, one of which will be the Minister of Finance.

Six provinces have passed the necessary legislation, electing to come under the scheme. These are: Quebec, Alberta, Manitoba, British Columbia, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Ontario, Saskatchewan, and Prince Edward Island had not as yet taken final steps in this direction.

Lean Men Better Insurance Risks

In conversation an English insurance man said that, unlike Caesar, insurance companies prefer lean men, as they consider them better "investments" than fat men. In this connection he added that men of moderate girth usually put on considerably more weight if they give up smoking. His observation of this particular method of weight-building has extended over many years.

Says No Nation On Earth Whose Position Is More Secure Than That Of This Dominion

"That we want, and what we must get, is that hearty satisfaction in co-operative work, a pride in our own possessions, and a comfort in our own allegiance, those are the bonds that are going to keep the Empire united, not only for a day and an hour, but for generation after generation. The British Empire stands above everything else in the world for freedom, openness, and freedom that is not merely political freedom."

With these words, Rt. Hon. Hannay MacDonald, leader of the British Labor Party, and former Prime Minister of Great Britain, summed up a declaration of faith in the permanence of the ties of Empire, when addressing the Canadian Club at Montreal. Mr. MacDonald expressed confidence in Canada's future and asserted that the spirit of buoyancy he had found in the Dominion was duplicated in Great Britain.

Mr. MacDonald agreed that trade preferences played a large part in holding the Empire together, but said: "Trade is sometimes a fickle jade. It is too often in the market place to be reliable. We must find something more."

Here Mr. MacDonald made his declaration of his idea of the essential part of empire unity.

He continued with a discussion of freedom. A nation following the gleam of freedom, he said, a commonwealth. A commonwealth would receive the homage of all the other nations of the world. That, he said, was his ideal of the British Empire.

Mr. MacDonald's vision of Canada's future was given in the following words:

"Canada, and this is the last word I shall offer you, has a future that is secure. As the years go on your population will get bigger and bigger, your factories will become larger and larger. You will develop a hidden port, you will exploit your hidden ports. The places that are now desolate will become busy haunts of exploited industry. Canada, 50 years from now, Canada of a century from now, what realm are you to put on the map? I tell you, my friends, there is no nation on the face of the earth whose future is more secure than yours. Wealth will pour into your lap, money will come to you in abundance. Economic power will be yours. When some of the still new countries that are your neighbors will have passed beyond the middle ages and begin to show flagging signs of years, Canada will still be young. Canada will still be budant."

So my friends, with this feeling in my heart, I, who have led a party and headed a government, composed mainly of men who before they came to rule had never entered public buildings except as supplicants, I who with colleagues who know what the British Empire means, not as red patches on the map, but as hours and hours, days and days, weeks and weeks, and months and months, of almost unbroken labor required to be careful of it, required to defend it, required to guard it, required to advance it, required to keep its name and reputation clear and pure, I come to you, and there is nothing in my heart except pleasure in meeting you and honor for the nation, its past, hope for its future. Nothing but those things are in my heart and that is what I have been saying, so imperfectly I am afraid, to express to you, while thanking you for the honor you have done me."

Sweeter Than Sugar

South American Plant May Be Valuable in Modern Diet

A substance two hundred times sweeter than sugar cane has been found in the desert regions of Paraguay, in South America. Scientists are experimenting to see whether its properties may not be valuable in modern diets. It belongs to the family of composites, of which the sunflower and daisy are familiar representatives. The sweetness it contains is not a sugar, but a glucoside somewhat similar to that found in the root of licorice. The leaves are dried and ground up, and a pinch of them is added to anything that requires sweetening; or they may be soaked in water and a sweet liquid prepared. One of the most valuable qualities of this liquid is that it does not ferment. The possible uses of such a substance are many and obvious. It will particularly interest sufferers from diabetes, promising to furnish them with a sweetening that has none of the harmful properties of sugar. Extensive tests will be required, of course, before it can be said that the new substance is wholesome and free from all deleterious effects. The plant has perennial roots, so that cutting the stem does not terminate its life.

Want Self-Government For India
The Associated Chambers of Commerce at Bombay, which claim to represent 1,000,000,000 of British capital invested in India, have made a move in favor of self-government for India. ADVICE TO PARENTS

Waywardness Of Children Largely Due To Lack Of Parental Discipline
General Draper, Toronto Police Chief, is not concentrating all his efforts merely in improving the efficiency of the force. He realizes that the success of any police system is dependent on the co-operation of the people at large and that the best public protection is a high standard of public morals. In writing in Clarion, a local veterans' organ, he gives some noteworthy advice to parents.

The chief is old-fashioned enough to believe that the Fifth Commandment means just what it says to children; and that no better formula for child-training can ever be discovered than is imparted in Proverbs 29:17, and 22:8.

"In what particular has the home failed?" the Chief asks. "I would say in relaxation of parental discipline and in the neglect of general supervision over the rising generation. The so-called emancipation of women from the 'bondage of the home' has been followed by a corresponding emancipation of the child from the control and discipline of the parents, and is one of the most potent factors in the growth of those conditions from which youthfulness, delinquency and crime develop. This body of conditions, this criminal proclivity in whole and in part, is fostered, if not actually created by the indifference, the lassitude, the neglect—or whatever you might call it—the failure by parents to perform their duties. The consequence is that the young of today are allowed to be poisoned in heart and mind by filthy, suggestive, vicious literature, so easily obtainable and widely discussed on all hands; by made a move in favor of self-government for India. Great care must be exercised in the education of boys in church, school and at home; attention must be paid to them in their spare time; and last, but not least, examples must be set by their elders which it would reflect to a boy's credit to follow. Why Russia Imported Wheat

Late Harvest and Depleted Reserves
Is Given As Reason
The fact that Soviet Russia recently had to import wheat was admitted at Moscow by A. Mikoyan, trade commissioner. In an interview with the newspaper Pravda, Mikoyan said because of the late harvest and depleted reserves, the government has been unable to supply much to the districts where the wheat crop was a partial failure. The government, therefore, purchased 270,000 tons abroad, of which 50 per cent. already had arrived and the balance was expected before the end of the month. Despite the necessity for importing wheat, Mikoyan said he expected the crop to exceed last year's.

Barbers Have Trouble With Watches

Why is a watch worn by a hairdresser subject to frequent breakdowns? "It is the little man's habit of hair that do the damage," said the hairdresser to me the other day, writing a Daily Chronicle contributor. "The last time I sent mine to be repaired—after only six months' wear—scores of tiny bits of hair were sent to have clogged the mechanism."

Explorations Reveal Character And Resources Of The Great Northern Plains Of Canada

Maps Must Be Accurate

Map Making Is An Art That Requires Great Exactitude

The lithographing of maps is a craft requiring great exactitude, and lithographers have many troubles. Not the least of these is with paper that shrinks or expands though ever so slightly under varying weather conditions.

In Britain's African colony of Gold Coast all color printing for maps has to cease during January when the hermitian winds. The dry wind following rapidly on humid conditions causes a change in the paper of as much as a quarter of an inch in a sheet two feet square. This makes it impossible to secure registration of the colors in their precise places on the maps. Map-making in Canada is subject to the same difficulties, but in a lesser degree.

Paper used in map-making is of a superior kind specially made for the purpose. Most of the papers used of general purposes are too porous and too susceptible to damp for high class work. Even when plaster of Paris and other fillers are used on them they are still subject to such great changes in dimensions as to be of little use for lithographing maps.

Alberta Macaroni

Lithbridge-Made Product Is Shipped To New Zealand

Macaroni from the Columbia Macaroni Factory, of Lithbridge, is going to invade the New Zealand market. A car of Lithbridge-made macaroni left recently for New Zealand, the first of the kind to be shipped. The car was loaded by the company last January. The report from the New Zealand dealers was that the macaroni was "second to none." There is now no duty on Canadian macaroni entering New Zealand, and a profitable market there is anticipated. An effort is now to be made to enter the Australian market. Mr. Rader, head of the Columbia Macaroni Factory, has received from Italy and installed the largest and most up-to-date machinery in the world, which will enable him to double the capacity of his North Lithbridge plant.

Good Work Of Reclamation Service

Heavy Gumbo Land In Alberta and Saskatchewan To Be Cultivated

As a result of experiments conducted between five and six years' duration conducted by the Calgary Branch of the Water Power and Reclamation Service, the department of the Interior, between 5,000 and 6,000 acres of heavy gumbo land known as the Mackay flats in Alberta and Saskatchewan, will soon come under preparation for the growth of alfalfa. By bringing a couple of town lots and experimenting with forage crops, it was proved that alfalfa and sweet clover can be grown on these flats. It is possible now to start an irrigation project to serve the whole lands will be developed.

Rust Resistant Wheat

Encouraging Results Are Obtained In Making Experiments This Year

"We are holding our breath," remarked L. M. Newman, Dominion inspector who is in the West, at the expectation referring to the development of a grade of wheat that will be rust resistant. Mr. Newman is looking into the situation of "Redward" wheat, which is not rust proof but grows so quickly as to be made before the rust season develops with the humid weather. This year "Redward" has been sown on 400 acres of experimental farms, while 467 farmers are growing it from limited samples distributed among them. The result so far is stated to be most encouraging.

As exploration and surveying reveal the character and resources of the great northern plains of Canada, former misconceptions of these great areas are disappearing. For many years, in fact, for nearly a century, nearly one-sixth of the area of the Dominion was branded "Barren Lands" and until recent years little was done to reconsider the possibilities of these regions in the light of present-day conditions. However in addition to carrying on their regular work, surveyors and explorers of the Topographical Survey of the Department of the Interior have been gradually penetrating into the Great Northern Plains. With the advantage of modern instruments and the benefit of scientific and technical training, these officers of the department are enabled to make more accurate surveys of the country than was possible by early explorers.

How one of the first explorers of Canada, Middlemore, came to apply the name "Barren Grounds" to what has proved to be one of the most fertile areas in the world is given in the account of Henry Kelsey's explorations in the last quarter of the seventeenth century. One of Kelsey's most expeditions was made between 1690 and 1692 when he travelled from Fort Nelson, on Hudson's Bay, to the west coast of the Mackenzie River. He journeyed in the company of a wandering band of Assiniboines, into the heart of the western prairie. His diary affords interesting reading today, particularly the entry for August 23, 1691, which is reproduced as follows:

"This instant ye Indians going on hunting killed great store of Buffalo, now ye manner of their hunting of these Beasts, as ye Indians call them, is when they see a great parcel of them together they surround them, and then they break out at some place or other and so get away from ye."

Of the country Kelsey writes: "This plain affords nothing but short round sticky grass, and Buffalo, as ye great word is, and which is bigger than any white deer, and is neither white nor black but silver haired like our English rabbit. Ye buffalo likewise is not like those of ye Northwest, but their horns make like an English ox or black and short."

Kelsey's interest in the region was from the point of view of the fur trader and its possibilities from an agricultural standpoint apparently never occurred to him. The country where he hunted the buffalo and the grizzlies now contributes hundreds of millions of bushels of grain annually and the "short round sticky grass" supports great herds of cattle.

A thousand miles north of the territory traversed by Kelsey, beyond the forested lands of the Canadian Shield, there is a vast expanse of the ocean and Hudson's Bay, to which Kelsey's epithet has been mistakenly transferred. Today's picture, given by recent explorers, is one of gently undulating country with lichens and mosses on the hills and shrubs, flowers and grasses flourishing in the valleys. It is true no trees grow north of the timber line and there are certain areas lacking in vegetation, but the greater part of the region is so far from being barren that it actually supports at the present time in addition to the fur-bearing and musk-oxen, hundreds of thousands of caribou.

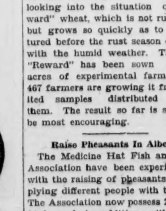

The public at large is but an elevator used to hoist the chosen few to prominence.

PAUL AT PHILIPPI

Golden Text: "Rejoice in the Lord always: again I will say, Rejoice."—Philippians 4. Lesson: Acts 16:14-40. Devotional Reading: Isaiah 53:1-13.

Explanations and Comments The apostle Paul, who lived at Philippi, writes 16:15. Paul was greatly distressed at Philippi by a fortune-telling maid who kept following him and Silas and crying, "These men are servants of the Most High God, who proclaim unto you the way of life." The girl was named Syntyche, and she was the daughter of the man who had been the owner of the slave girl. Paul and Silas were greatly distressed by her belief in her supernatural powers, and that she had become alive to the normal life of the slave who the intense faith of the stranger gave them.

The girl followed Paul and Silas for many days, and her relentless chant drew a crowd of curiosity-seekers. Paul and Silas were troubled at length he turned to her, and in the name of Jesus Christ he said the spirit leave her, and she became wholly normal. Nothing further is told about this girl, and she is never mentioned again. One writer expresses his surprise that Paul would partake of the Christian's help of Lydia, and the benevolent Christian who at Philippi, who would be the owner of the man who had dominion over her, but a sister beloved in the Lord."

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Increasing alarm is being expressed over the unemployment situation in Great Britain, with 1,300,000 men out of work.

Two new brands of whisky, approved by the Ontario Liquor Control Board, have been put on the market by the commission. The varieties are styled "Commission No. 1," and "Commission No. 2," and bear the seal of the board's approval on the bottles.

Dr. Paul, chief chemical analyzer for the Surete Generale, the French Scotland Yard, is reported to have detected toxic matter in the viscera of Captain Alfred Loewenstein, Belgian financier, whose death recently was surrounded with mystery.

Four men held up the First National Bank of Boston, N.D., and escaped with between $3,000 and $4,000. They made their getaway in a dark blue Buick sedan heading east out of Boston, which is about 65 miles north of Fargo.

Baron Von Hunsfeldt, owner of the trans-Atlantic monoplane, the Bremen, which Captain Herman Koch and Col. James Fitzmaurice, pilot, across the Atlantic, will make a test of the disabled plane to the projected municipal museum of New York.

Investigation of the immediate power requirements of the city of Saskatoon is to be made by a committee of the Saskatchewan Government, with a view to working out a plan under which a start can be made in the production and sale of power under central control.

Owing to inadequate steamship accommodation, it will be impossible to transport to Canada full quotas of 500 unemployed which were to work in the Western harvest fields, according to J. Bruce Walker, director of European immigration for Canada. He states that possibly not more than 8,500 would be taken to Canada from all sources.

Lost Prospector Found

After Waking Aimlessly For 48 Days, Is Rescued By Plane

Lost forty-eight days, during which time he wandered aimlessly through the dense wooded country north of The Pas, Andrew Taylor, local prospector, was found by rescuers near Burntwood Lake, and brought by aeroplane to The Pas. It was a harrowing story that Taylor related to his rescuers. For days he walked through the woods in the belief that he was on his way to settlement, only to find that he was hopelessly lost.

Faced with starvation, he had killed frogs and eaten them, and at times when driven to desperation had relieved his hunger by consuming dead fish found on the surface of the river.

Later, he found a few half formed wild raspberries and there stumbled across a potato patch planted by an Indian. It was the uprooted tubers seen by a wandering native that gave the first authentic clue to his whereabouts.

He must have travelled 300 miles in a huge circle to reach Burntwood Lake.

The condition of the man when found by Fred Coleman, veteran prospector of Cobalt, Ont., and Capt. Kenyon, who piloted the Fokker search plane, betrayed the extreme hardship and suffering which he had endured during his wanderings. His clothing was in tatters from pressing through dense underbrush, while bits of rags were bound around his feet for protection against the rough treading.

Seven weeks' growth of beard covered his face, while his haggard countenance showed that he could not have survived much longer if aid had not reached him. Barely able to walk, he nevertheless showed signs of having been returned to his wife and friends who had long since given him up for dead.

Following lunch and a warm wet blanket by Lieut. Fred Donaghy, we were soon watching with critical eyes the landing and ascent of the plane, noting with admiration the high average of quality prior to taking

We were now in the home of the Clydebank, and a call by Mr. W. from Newcastle, in the morning had brought a pressing invitation from Messrs. A. & N. Templeton, of Sandy Knowe, near Kelso, to visit them. This took a section of our party to see the great horse "Benefactor" and some of his progeny as well as the famous stock of Messrs. Templeton and here we had our first taste of Scottish hospitality. The brothers with their sisters and mother came out to meet us, and we were greeted with the "wee droppie" which became the afternoon was lovely and from the high ground at Sandy Knowe the eye can roam for twenty to thirty miles in every direction over the beautiful Scottish countryside. Our visit over, we continued our journey to Edinburgh en route the night with old familiar songs.

Our "train body" had gone on passing through Dalkieth at dusk, awakening many memories for some of our party. Mr. James Walker, representing the Scottish Bank of Commerce, Toronto, who was born in this pleasant Scottish town of Dundee, now in Edinburgh, comfortably established in the North British Hotel, overlooking the Firth of Forth, met us.

Nearly Million Dollars Damage From Floods in Southern Manitoba. Winnipeg.—One hundred and fifty farmers of the Sperdyng District in Southern Manitoba, claiming to have suffered loss to their crops amounting to nearly a million dollars, have directed an appeal to the government for drainage relief.

According to a spokesman for the distressed farmers, approximately 100 sections of land were inundated during June and July, destroying crops and leaving a large area of the affected area. Premier Hugh Bracken and Hon. W. R. Clubb, minister of public works, following a trip of inspection of the flooded lands, promised early consideration of the request.

Toronto Professor Says Pool Has Revolutionized Moral of Farming Community

Williamstown, Mass.—Agricultural co-operation is not merely a marketing device but a means of lifting the farmer to a plane of greater prosperity and keeping him there, Prof. C. R. Fay, of the University of Toronto, told the Institute of Politics here.

In Canada," he said, "the wheat pool has revolutionized the morale of the farming community, relieving the farmer of the difficulty of dealing with the market, relieving him of the pressure to sell at certain seasons and basing all farm marketing on statistical knowledge."

The cooperative system he declared, is of special benefit to the small farmers, whose plane of living has been raised to the highest level it ever reached.

In the United States the government's attitude toward the farmer's problem is one of encouragement through active assistance in research and educational facilities. C. L. McGowan, director of the department of co-operative marketing of the department of agriculture, said.

Receives Re-Appointment

Dr. McLean To Be Assistant Chief Commissioner Of Rail Board

Ottawa.—Dr. Simon J. McLean, O.T.A., has been re-appointed assistant chief commissioner of the board of railway commissioners. Dr. McLean's term of office expired August 8, and his re-appointment is for a further period of ten years. Dr. McLean was originally appointed to the board in 1908.

The term of Commissioner Frank Oliver will terminate toward the end of September, when Mr. Oliver will have reached the age limit of 70 years.

Dr. McLean drafted the Dominion Railway Act, and his re-appointment for a third term creates a precedent. Since the formation of the board of railway commissioners in 1904, Dr. McLean has been the only commissioner to be re-appointed after expiration of the ten-year term.

While no official statement has been made in the matter, it is rumored that the legislature may possibly be introduced at the next session of Parliament providing for the superannuation of members of the board.

Born—To Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Robinson of Haven, on Sunday, August 19, twin daughters; one died shortly after birth.

Commencing August 18, the management of Oyen Theatre adopted a 2-show schedule for Saturday nights. The picture will start at 7 p.m. and be run continuously for two complete shows, the second show starting at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. John Oszust, who has been visiting her husband at Wembley, returned to Oyen yesterday.

Here and There

Lumber companies report the greatest volume of business in Alberta since the begin of 1912. One hundred million feet of lumber is being cut in Alberta this year but the bulk of the supplies come from British Columbia mills.

A press report from Telfordville states that the farmers are well pleased with the allocation of stations on the twenty mile extension to the Headley subdivision in the Canadian Pacific Railway. A large number of settlers are going into the territory which will be served by this extension and the old liners in the district are now clearing and breaking as much land as possible.

Kyohel Kato, who represents a Tokio concern, and who has just concluded a business mission to Canada, stated that he had bought 800,000 bushels of wheat in Canada, or about half of Japan's total importations. He explained that Japan got more for its rice than Canadian wheat cost in their market, hence the present purchase. He said, too, that Japanese were eating more wheat foods and importing themselves to the stronger diet.

"The Maritime Provinces in particular, and Canada in general, need more commercial advertising," was the opinion expressed by Hon. J. B. MacArthur, Prime Minister of New Brunswick, when interviewed on arrival on board the "Empress of Scotland" after a month's visit to Europe. British settlers in the Maritimes have been quite satisfactory as regards type and quality, he said, and he hoped that we will be able to obtain a great many more emigrants per a period of years.

Part of a litter of eight red foxes, which, together with the vixen, were captured in the Arcola district recently, have been brought to Moose Jaw by Mr. W. White, who has established a fox farm east of this city. It is many years since red fox have lived at large in their natural state in the southern part of this province, where there were captured. Mr. White intends to start raising patch foxes, a cross between red and silver or black fox, as a commercial enterprise.

Wool growing in Western Canada is increasing rapidly, according to W. W. Thomson, manager of the western branch of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Limited. Up to June 30th, he pointed out, four carloads of wool had left Regina for Western Ontario, for grading by Government authorities as compared with one for the same half year of 1923. This year's shipments represent 168,000 lbs. from 360 flocks in the province.

The mystic number "13" holds no terrors in the Royal Order of Jesuites, an organization within the Immaculate Temple Shrine of Buffalo, who called on Fr. John A. Thirteenth of July, with thirteen members in their party, from Montreal for Liverpool. The society meets on the thirteenth of each month at 6:15 in the afternoon, and is divided into courts of 13 members each. The party of Jesuits called on to the creek near Canadian Pacific River "bushes of Buffalo" is a group of Bushmen visiting the old world.

Functioning Well

that their organization is functioning smoothly, and that they will get the very best average price obtainable for their wheat. There is no reason for members becoming panicky.

The Wheat Pool is entering its second contract period in very considerable strength. Undoubtedly the membership will be increased very rapidly during the next few months. Five years of operation has given the Pool directors and officials invaluable experience and it is only reasonable to expect that each succeeding year more efficiency will be attained.
